SECTION 6: WHAT WILL MY NATIONAL POLICE CERTIFICATE SHOW?*Victoria Police Policy - Victorian Records

For the purposes of employment, voluntary work or occupation related licensing/registration, Victoria Police may restrict the release of a person's police record according to the Victoria Police "Information Release Policy". If you have a police record with Victoria Police, the "Information Release Policy" may take into account the age of the police record and the purpose for which the information is being released. If ten years have elapsed since you were last found guilty of an offence in Victoria, Victoria Police will, in most instances, advise that you have no disclosable court outcomes. However, a record over ten years may be released:

- If it includes a term of imprisonment longer than thirty months;
- If it includes a serious violent or sexual offence and the records check is for the purpose of working with children, elderly people or disabled people;
- If it is for a Gaming licence application;
- If it is in the interests of crime prevention or public safety.

Please note:

- If the records check is for the applicant's personal information only, the above restrictions do not apply and all court results will be released.
- Findings of guilt without conviction and good behaviour bonds may be released.
- Recent charges or outstanding matters under investigation that have not yet gone to court may also be released.

Other Australian Police Forces - Non-Victorian Records

Where a police record with another Australian police force has been obtained, any relevant legislation (and/or release policy) affecting that police force will be applied before it is released. Under various pieces of Commonwealth, State and Territory legislation a person has the right, in particular circumstances or for a particular purpose, to not disclose certain convictions (eg findings of guilt over a certain age). Such convictions (widely referred to as 'spent' or 'rehabilitated' convictions) will not be released unless the records check is for the applicant's personal information only and providing that this is in accordance with relevant legislation (and/or release policy). Please contact individual police forces directly for further information about their release policies and any legislation which affects them.
